

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 1

Which of the following is true about Kevin?

Options :

1. Kevin hated travelling and wished to stay back at home.
2. Kevin was a sick child who could not move about much.
3. Kevin judged people on the basis of looks and was snobbish.
4. Kevin was quarrelsome and treated the people around him with a lot of unkindness
5. Kevin wanted to travel to some other place but was being taken to Yorkshire.

Answer : Kevin judged people on the basis of looks and was snobbish.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 2

Which of the following best states the characteristics of Mrs. Spencer?

Options :

1. She was a kind woman and remained sweet to Kevin in spite of his bad attitude.
2. She was a strict woman and was just doing her responsibilities ignoring his ill manners.

3. She was a greedy lady and flattered the little boy to gain more money.
4. Mrs. Spencer was unkind towards the little boy and she meant harm to him.
5. Mrs. Spencer was a vapid woman who kept silent and was least bothered about him.

Answer : She was a strict woman and was just doing her responsibilities ignoring his ill manners.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered.

"We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

• Question No. 3

Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

Options :

1. The boy was being taken to a place where he had never been before.
2. The boy was kidnapped by the lady and was being shifted to another place
3. The lady was taking the boy to his native place which was far away from the station.
4. The boy was returning to his home with the lady.
5. The boy was out on a tour and was going to travel several places.

Answer : The boy was being taken to a place where he had never been before.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked.

Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 4

Which of the following describes the boy's state of mind in the passage?

Options :

1. He was angry that he had to travel against his will.
2. He was low that he had to go to another place and travel so much.
3. He was excited to see the new place where he would be living.
4. He was unclear and clueless and kept on wondering how the house would be.
5. He was happy and cheerful that he was travelling to some other place.

Answer : He was unclear and clueless and kept on wondering how the house would be.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

• Question No. 5

Which of the following can be said about the financial background of the boy?

Options :

1. He belonged to a rich family.
2. He was a poor boy and was travelling in the most inconvenient ways.
3. It can be understood that his family had recently become rich.
4. He belonged to a middle class background as nothing pompous has been mentioned.
5. Nothing can be inferred about the financial background.

Answer : He belonged to a rich family.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 6

Which of the following best describes Kevin's traits?

Options :

1. He was a scared, timid boy who was extremely obedient.
2. He was a naughty child but was not unkind or selfish.
3. He was arrogant and snobbish and thought too high of himself.
4. He was a wicked boy who wanted to harm Mrs. Spencer and run away.
5. He was a foolish lazy boy who was interested in nothing but sleep.

Answer : He was arrogant and snobbish and thought too high of himself.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 7

Which of the following is true about Kevin's thoughts while traveling?

Options :

1. He was feeling lonely and missed Mrs. Spencer.
2. He was irritated and wanted to get rid of Mrs. Spencer.
3. He was loving the scene outside and wanted to visit the places.
4. He was really curious and wanted to see the land across which he was travelling.
5. He was feeling scared and did not want to leave the cozy corner of the carriage.

Answer : He was really curious and wanted to see the land across which he was travelling.

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

• Question No. 8

Which of the following is the MOST SIMILAR in meaning to the word 'queer'?

Options :

1. Sorrowful
2. Strange
3. Old
4. Scary
5. Moderate

Answer : Strange

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 9

Which of the following is the MOST SIMILAR in meaning to the word 'jolt'?

Options :

1. Jerk

2. Stop
3. Hit
4. Pull
5. Rush

Answer : Jerk

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

• Question No. 10

Which of the following is the MOST OPPOSITE in meaning to the word 'burly'?

Options :

1. Humble
2. Kind
3. Puny
4. Crooked
5. Wise

Answer : Puny

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 11

Which of the following is the MOST OPPOSITE in meaning to the word 'fretful'?

Options :

1. Depressed
2. Restive
3. Cheerful
4. Edgy
5. Arrogant

Answer : Cheerful

Direction:

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Certain words are printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of these.

Kevin thought Mrs. Spencer was the most disagreeable person he had ever seen, with her common, highly colored face and her common fine bonnet. When the next day they set out on their journey to Yorkshire, he walked through the station to the railway carriage with his head up and trying to keep as far away from her as he could, because he did not want to seem to belong to her. It would have made him angry to think people imagined he was her little son. But Mrs. Spencer was not in the least disturbed by him and his thoughts. She was the kind of woman who would "stand no nonsense from young ones." At least, that is what she would have said if she had been asked. Kevin sat in the corner of the railway carriage and looked plain and fretful. He had nothing to read or look at and sat with folded hands on his lap. He stared out of the window with his lips pinched together, and it seemed quite natural that the rain should have begun to pour down in gray slanting lines and splash and stream down the windowpanes. He watched it so long and steadily that the grayness grew heavier and heavier before his eyes and he fell asleep. Finally, they reached the station. Kevin stood up and tried to keep his eyes open while Mrs. Spencer collected her parcels. The little boy did not offer to help her, because in India native servants always picked up or carried things and it seemed quite proper that other people should wait on one. The station was a small one and nobody but themselves seemed to be getting out of the train. The station-master spoke to Mrs. Spencer in a rough, good-natured way, pronouncing her words in a queer broad fashion which Kevin found out afterward was Yorkshire. A brougham stood on the road before the little platform. Kevin saw that it was a smart carriage and that it was a smart footman who helped him in. His long waterproof coat and the waterproof covering of his hat were shining and dripping with rain as everything was, the burly station-master included. When he shut the door, mounted the box with the coachman, and they drove off, the little boy found himself seated in a comfortably cushioned corner, but he was not inclined to go to sleep again. He sat and looked out of the window, curious to see something of the road over which he was being driven to the queer place Mrs. Spencer had spoken of. He was not at all a timid child and he was not exactly frightened, but he felt that there was no knowing what might happen in a house with a hundred rooms nearly all shut up--a house standing on the edge of a moor. "What is a moor?" he said suddenly to Mrs. Spencer. "Look out of the window in about ten minutes and you'll see," the woman answered. "We've got to drive five miles across Missel Moor before we get to the Manor. You won't see much because it's a dark night, but you can see something." He asked no more questions but waited in the darkness of his corner, keeping his eyes on the window. The carriage lamps cast rays of light a little distance ahead of them and he caught glimpses of the things they passed. After they had left the station they had driven through a tiny village and he had seen whitewashed cottages and the lights of a public house. Then they had passed a church and a vicarage and a little shop-window or so in a cottage with toys and sweets and odd things set out for sale. Then they were on the high road and he saw hedges and trees. After that there seemed nothing different for a long time--or at least it seemed a long time to him. At last, the horses began to go more slowly, as if they were climbing up-hill, and presently there seemed to be no more hedges and no more trees. He could see nothing, in fact, but a dense darkness on either side. He leaned forward and pressed his face against the window just as the carriage gave a big jolt. "Eh! We're on the moor now sure enough," said Mrs. Spencer. Source: The secret garden by Frances Hodgson.

- Question No. 12

Which of the following is the MOST OPPOSITE in meaning to the word 'Disagreeable'?

Options :

1. Strong
2. Rich
3. Pleasant
4. Dolorous
5. Active

Answer : Pleasant

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 13

The defence minister thought (1)/ that each veteran (2)/ was as respectful as himself and (3)/ should be given due preference as well. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : No error

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 14

Appropriation of assets have become (1)/ increasingly important due to (2)/ the willingness of those in power (3)/ to abuse authority for personal gains. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : 1

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 15

The first lady took it upon (1)/ herself to make sure that the (2)/ government run smoothly while the (3)/ President was recuperating from the surgery. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : 3

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 16

Cases of malignant melanoma are rising (1)/ faster among men than women, but men are (2)/ often worse than their female counterpart at (3)/ protecting themselves from the Sun. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : 3

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 17

Unfortunately, India continues to be one of the backward countries (1)/ with respect to literacy, despite of the fact (2)/ that successive governments have been trying (3)/ their best to promote education. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : 2

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 18

Employee tend to fear (1)/ an economic slowdown as it prompts (2)/ the big companies (3)/ to layoff their workforce. (4)

Options :

- 1. 1
- 2. 2
- 3. 3
- 4. 4
- 5. No error

Answer : 1

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 19

Parts of the state were (1)/ paralyzed after a (2)/ state-wide bandh was called by (3)/ different farmer groups in Rajasthan. (4)

Options :

1. 1
2. 2
3. 3
4. 4
5. No error

Answer : No error

Direction:

Read the sentence to find out whether there is any error in it. The error, if any, will be in one part of the sentence. The number corresponding to that part is your answer. If the given sentence is correct as given, mark the answer as "No error". Ignore the errors of punctuation, if any.

• Question No. 20

China has constantly been blocking India's membership (1)/ in the 48-nation grouping, which controls (2)/ the nuclear commerce, even though India has the (3)/ backing of the majority of the members. (4)

Options :

1. 1
2. 2
3. 3
4. 4
5. No error

Answer : No error

Direction:

The following question carries a sentence with a word marked in bold. The word has been incorrectly spelt. Select the word from the options that can replace the emboldened word to make the sentence correct.

- Question No. 21

The exesstance of UFO's is something that people continue to argue about.

Options :

1. Existince
2. Existance
3. Existence
4. Ecistance
5. Existense

Answer : Existence

Direction:

The following question carries a sentence with a word marked in bold. The word has been incorrectly spelt. Select the word from the options that can replace the emboldened word to make the sentence correct.

- Question No. 22

In return for full acceptance, Western democratic societies demand that immigrants enthusiasticallyacquiese to a new nation's cultural values.

Options :

1. Acquiss
2. Acquiesce
3. Acquise
4. Acqueisce
5. Acquesce

Answer : Acquiesce

Direction:

The following question carries a sentence with a word marked in bold. The word has been incorrectly spelt. Select the word from the options that can replace the emboldened word to make the sentence correct.

- Question No. 23

He told the teenagers that such purile behavior would not be tolerated during the ceremony.

Options :

1. Perile
2. Purail
3. Puerele
4. Purele
5. Puerile

Answer : Puerile

Direction:

The following question carries a sentence with a word marked in bold. The word has been incorrectly spelt. Select the word from the options that can replace the emboldened word to make the sentence correct.

- Question No. 24

China is a rapacious regime that poses a significant threat not just to American interests but to the entire civilized world.

Options :

1. Rapacious
2. Rapicious
3. Rapacus
4. Ripaceous
5. Rapaceus

Answer : Rapacious

Direction:

The following question carries a sentence with a word marked in bold. The word has been incorrectly spelt. Select the word from the options that can replace the emboldened word to make the sentence correct.

- Question No. 25

The disabled athlete did not let advarsety stop her from competing in the Olympics.

Options :

1. Adversaty
2. Advirsity
3. Advarcity
4. Adversity
5. Advarsity

Answer : Adversity

Direction:

A sentence with one blank is given, indicating that something has been omitted. Choose the word that best fits the blank appropriately.

- Question No. 26

The government is planning to set _____ family welfare centers for slums in cities.

Options :

1. another
2. with
3. for
4. in
5. up

Answer : up

Direction:

A sentence with one blank is given, indicating that something has been omitted. Choose the word that best fits the blank appropriately.

- Question No. 27

Economic independence and education have _____ women more assertive.

Options :

1. prepared

2. made
3. marked
4. resulted
5. adjusted

Answer : made

Direction:

A sentence with one blank is given, indicating that something has been omitted. Choose the word that best fits the blank appropriately.

- Question No. 28

In the modern world, the _____ of change and scientific innovation is unusually rapid.

Options :

1. supplies
2. context
3. pace
4. fantasy
5. requirement

Answer : pace

Direction:

A sentence with one blank is given, indicating that something has been omitted. Choose the word that best fits the blank appropriately.

- Question No. 29

The unprecedented economic growth of China has _____ worldwide attention.

Options :

1. perceived
2. proposed
3. neither
4. astonished

5. attracted

Answer : attracted

Direction:

A sentence with one blank is given, indicating that something has been omitted. Choose the word that best fits the blank appropriately.

• Question No. 30

There was this new belief among people that they could be successful, and that there were opportunities that could be _____.

Options :

1. chosed
2. remembered
3. dared
4. granted
5. grabbed

Answer : grabbed

Direction:

What value should come in the place of question mark (?) in the following number series?

• Question No. 31

6, 5, 7, 12.5, 27, ?

Options :

1. 69.5
2. 64.5
3. 72.5
4. 67.5
5. None of these

Answer : 69.5

Direction:

What should come in place of the question mark (?) in the following number series?

- Question No. 32

3 18 35 56 83 ?

Options :

1. 115
2. 107
3. 118
4. 132
5. None of these

Answer : 118

Direction:

What value should come in the place of question mark (?) in the following number series?

- Question No. 33

7, 6, 10, 27, ?, 515

Options :

1. 98
2. 104
3. 132
4. 112
5. None of these

Answer : 104

Direction:

What value should come in the place of question mark (?) in the following number series?

- Question No. 34

45, 49, 40, 56, 31, ?

Options :

1. 98
2. 54
3. 72
4. 67
5. None of these

Answer : 67

Direction:

What value should come in the place of question mark (?) in the following number series?

- Question No. 35

11, 29, 65, 137, ?, 569

Options :

1. 275
2. 263
3. 281
4. 294
5. None of these

Answer : 281

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The data in the given table is number of erasers sold by five sellers on five different days of the week.

Study the given data carefully and answer the given questions based on it.

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
P	30	40	25	65
Q	40	50	85	30
R	70	30	60	50
S	55	25	40	35
T	80	35	80	60

- Question No. 36

If the sale of erasers from T on Friday was 60% of that on Wednesday and Thursday together. Find the number of erasers sold by T on Friday.

Options :

1. 80
2. 84
3. 88
4. 78
5. None of these

Answer : 84

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The data in the given table is number of erasers sold by five sellers on five different days of the week.

Study the given data carefully and answer the given questions based on it.

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
P	30	40	25	65
Q	40	50	85	30
R	70	30	60	50
S	55	25	40	35
T	80	35	80	60

- Question No. 37

What is the approximate percentage increase in the sale of erasers by seller P from Monday to Tuesday?

Options :

1. 33%
2. 41%
3. 27%
4. 16%
5. None of these

Answer : 33%

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The data in the given table is number of erasers sold by five sellers on five different days of the week.

Study the given data carefully and answer the given questions based on it.

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
P	30	40	25	65
Q	40	50	85	30
R	70	30	60	50
S	55	25	40	35
T	80	35	80	60

- Question No. 38

The number of erasers sold by seller Q on Monday is approximately how much more/less than that on Thursday and Wednesday together?

Options :

1. 45%
2. 70%

3. 65%
4. 35%
5. None of these

Answer : 65%

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The data in the given table is number of erasers sold by five sellers on five different days of the week.

Study the given data carefully and answer the given questions based on it.

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
P	30	40	25	65
Q	40	50	85	30
R	70	30	60	50
S	55	25	40	35
T	80	35	80	60

- Question No. 39

What is the ratio of number of erasers sold by P and S on Monday and R and Q on Tuesday?

Options :

1. 7:6
2. 14:15
3. 12:17
4. 17:16
5. None of these

Answer : 17:16

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The data in the given table is number of erasers sold by five sellers on five different days of the week.

Study the given data carefully and answer the given questions based on it.

	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday
P	30	40	25	65
Q	40	50	85	30
R	70	30	60	50
S	55	25	40	35
T	80	35	80	60

• Question No. 40

The number of erasers sold by R on Tuesday is approximately how much percent of the number of erasers sold by S on Monday.

Options :

1. 15%
2. 30%
3. 55%
4. 20%
5. None of these

Answer : 55%

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

• Question No. 41

$45\% \text{ of } 400 + \sqrt{?} = 56\% \text{ of } 750 - 40\% \text{ of } 350$

Options :

1. 10201
2. 10416
3. 9804

4. 10,000

5. None of these

Answer : 10,000

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 42

$$\{4 \div (11/2)\} \times 176 + 64 \times ? = 256$$

Options :

1. 2

2. 6

3. 8

4. 10

5. None of these

Answer : 2

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 43

$$4096 \times (16)^3 \div 16 = (4)^? \times 64$$

Options :

1. 3

2. 7

3. 9

4. 11

5. None of these

Answer : 7

Direction:

What will come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 44

$$264 \div \sqrt{576} + 11^2 + 12 = ?^2$$

Options :

1. 8
2. 18
3. 10
4. 12
5. None of these

Answer : 12

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 45

$$(23 \times 8) - (13 \times 5) + 67 = ? \times 6$$

Options :

1. 31
2. 28
3. 23
4. 44
5. None of these

Answer : 31

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 46

$$(125 \div 0.5) \div 0.5 = 80\% \text{ of ?}$$

Options :

1. 325
2. 625
3. 225
4. 425
5. None of these

Answer : 625

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 47

$$(9/2) + \{1 \div (26/9)\} - (40/13) = ?$$

Options :

1. 13/23
2. 25/13
3. 26/15
4. 23/13
5. None of these

Answer : 23/13

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 48

$$345 + \sqrt{?} = 19^2 + 27 \times 8 \div 24$$

Options :

1. 625
2. 525

- 3. 125
- 4. 1225
- 5. None of these

Answer : 625

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 49

150% of 460 + 24% of 650=?

Options :

- 1. 716
- 2. 824
- 3. 846
- 4. 1268
- 5. None of these

Answer : 846

Direction:

What should come in place of question mark (?) in the following question?

- Question No. 50

64% of ? ÷ 14 = 176

Options :

- 1. 3720
- 2. 3540
- 3. 3250
- 4. 3850
- 5. None of these

Answer : 3850

- Question No. 51

The difference between the simple and the compound interest earned on a sum of money at the rate of 5 % per annum for 2 yr is Rs. 63. Find the principal.

Options :

1. 25200
2. 24500
3. 26400
4. 27250
5. None of these

Answer : 25200

- Question No. 52

Ramesh is twice as fast as Amrish and Amrish is thrice as fast as Rohit in doing a work. Working together they can finish the work in 10 days. In how many days can Amrish and Rohit together finish the work.

Options :

1. 30 days
2. 20 days
3. 25 days
4. 24 days
5. None of these

Answer : 25 days

- Question No. 53

There are two pipes A & B which can fill a tank in 30 hours and 15 hours respectively. There is a leak as well. When these all 3 (pipes + leak) are active, they take 12 hours 30 minutes to fill the tank. Find the time in which the leak can empty the whole tank?

Options :

1. 50 hours
2. 25 hours
3. 30 hours
4. 40 hours
5. None of these

Answer : 50 hours

• Question No. 54

An article was sold at Rs. 2160 after giving two successive discounts of 10% and 20%. The cost price of the article was Rs. 1800. Find the difference between the marked price and the cost price of the article.

Options :

1. Rs 1300
2. Rs 1500
3. Rs 1200
4. Rs 1150
5. None of these

Answer : Rs 1200

• Question No. 55

There are 3 persons – Anup, Bhaskar and Chetan. Chetan is 2 years younger than Anup and Bhaskar is 12 years older than Anup. If $(\text{Anup} + 2)/(\text{Bhaskar} + 4) = 1/3$, then find the age of Chetan 5 years hence.

Options :

1. 7 years
2. 8 years
3. 10 years
4. 13 years

5. None of these

Answer : 8 years

• Question No. 56

2 pipes can fill a tank in 10 and 20 hours respectively and one leak can empty the same tank in 40 hours. If all these 3 are active/opened then find the total time needed to fill the tank.

Options :

1. 15 hours
2. 12 hours
3. 8 hours
4. 16 hours
5. None of these

Answer : 8 hours

• Question No. 57

Average of 15 numbers is 12. Average of first 4 numbers is 9 and the average of last 9 numbers is 14. Find the average of 5th and 6th number.

Options :

1. 7
2. 8
3. 12
4. 9
5. None of these

Answer : 9

• Question No. 58

Ankit, Baldev and Chirag invested Rs. 12600, 10800 & 16200 respectively in a business. They invested the respective amount for the same time period. Out of the total profit earned in the business, Chirag received Rs 16200 as his share. Find the difference between the profits of Ankit and Baldev.

Options :

1. 1200
2. 2100
3. 1500
4. 1800
5. None of these

Answer : 1800

- Question No. 59

Marked price of article is Rs 1500. It is sold at 20% discount. Had it been sold for Rs 100 less, profit of 10% had been made. Find the cost price.

Options :

1. Rs 1000
2. Rs 1250
3. Rs 1050
4. Rs 1500
5. None of these

Answer : Rs 1000

- Question No. 60

Side of square having perimeter 64 cm is equal to the breadth of rectangle having area 320 sq. cm. Find the perimeter of rectangle.

Options :

1. 60 cm

2. 54 cm
3. 72 cm
4. 96 cm
5. None of these

Answer : 72 cm

• Question No. 61

Number of students in school in 2012 is 3200. In 2013, it increased by 30%. In 2014 it decreased by 5% as compared to 2013. If in 2014, number of boys is 2893, find number of girls in school.

Options :

1. 1237
2. 1059
3. 1193
4. 1315
5. None of these

Answer : 1059

• Question No. 62

Circumference of a semi-circle is 108 cm. Find the circumference of a circle whose radius is equal to the diameter of the semicircle.

Options :

1. 256 cm
2. 196 cm
3. 264 cm
4. 216 cm
5. None of these

Answer : 264 cm

• Question No. 63

108 litres pure milk in a can. 36 litres milk taken out, same amount of water added. Now 15 litres of mixture taken out, and 7 litres of water added. Water constitutes what % of the total mixture now?

Options :

1. 16%
2. 24%
3. 38%
4. 42%
5. None of these

Answer : 38%

• Question No. 64

Rs X was invested by A at 5% simple interest for 3 years in a scheme. Total amount received by him was 3450. If same amount X is invested at 4% simple interest for 4 years, find amount received.

Options :

1. Rs. 3480
2. Rs. 3820
3. Rs. 3240
4. Rs. 3560
5. None of these

Answer : Rs. 3480

• Question No. 65

A person travels at 60 kmph on the first day for 'X' minutes. On the second day, he travels a total distance of 250 kilometers at a speed of 75 kmph. The distance travelled by the person on the first day is 60 percent of the distance travelled on the second day. Find the value of 'X'.

Options :

1. 150 minutes
2. 120 minutes
3. 180 minutes
4. 130 minutes
5. None of these

Answer : 150 minutes

Direction:

Study following information carefully and answer the questions given below.

Eight friends- P, Q, R, S, T, U, V and W are living in an eight floor building. The lowermost floor is numbered one and above it numbered two and so on until the topmost floor is numbered eight. Each of them likes different sweets, viz. Gulab Jamun, Rasgulla, Rasmalai, Petha, Peda, Kaju Kathli, Jalebi and Sonpapdi, but not necessarily in the same order.

Only two persons live between P and R. W likes neither Petha nor Peda. The one who likes Rasgulla lives on the even numbered floor but not on the topmost floor. The one who likes Kaju Kathli does not live on the odd numbered floor. Only two persons live between V and the one who likes Rasgulla. Neither R nor W lives on the first floor. The one who likes Petha does not live on the lowermost floor. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the even numbered floor and lives immediately above the one who likes Peda. Only two persons live between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Gulab Jamun. P lives immediately above V. U does not like Jalebi. Q lives immediately below the one who likes Peda. Only one person lives between W and the one who likes Rasmalai. Only one person lives between V and the one who likes Petha. S lives on the even numbered floor and immediately above W.

- Question No. 66

Which of the following combinations is correct?

Options :

1. Q – Rasgulla
2. R – Peda

- 3. U – Kaju Kathli
- 4. P – Gulab Jamun
- 5. None of these

Answer : None of these

Direction:

Study following information carefully and answer the questions given below.

Eight friends- P, Q, R, S, T, U, V and W are living in an eight floor building. The lowermost floor is numbered one and above it numbered two and so on until the topmost floor is numbered eight. Each of them likes different sweets, viz. Gulab Jamun, Rasgulla, Rasmalai, Petha, Peda, Kaju Kathli, Jalebi and Sonpapdi, but not necessarily in the same order.

Only two persons live between P and R. W likes neither Petha nor Peda. The one who likes Rasgulla lives on the even numbered floor but not on the topmost floor. The one who likes Kaju Kathli does not live on the odd numbered floor. Only two persons live between V and the one who likes Rasgulla. Neither R nor W lives on the first floor. The one who likes Petha does not live on the lowermost floor. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the even numbered floor and lives immediately above the one who likes Peda. Only two persons live between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Gulab Jamun. P lives immediately above V. U does not like Jalebi. Q lives immediately below the one who likes Peda. Only one person lives between W and the one who likes Rasmalai. Only one person lives between V and the one who likes Petha. S lives on the even numbered floor and immediately above W.

- Question No. 67

Four of the following five are alike in certain way and thus form a group as per the given arrangement. Which of the following does not belong to that group?

Options :

- 1. Sonpapdi
- 2. Gulab Jamun
- 3. Jalebi
- 4. Kaju Kathli
- 5. Rasgulla

Answer : Gulab Jamun

Direction:

Study following information carefully and answer the questions given below.

Eight friends- P, Q, R, S, T, U, V and W are living in an eight floor building. The lowermost floor is numbered one and above it numbered two and so on until the topmost floor is numbered eight. Each of them likes different sweets, viz. Gulab Jamun, Rasgulla, Rasmalai, Petha, Peda, Kaju Kathli, Jalebi and Sonpapdi, but not necessarily in the same order.

Only two persons live between P and R. W likes neither Petha nor Peda. The one who likes Rasgulla lives on the even numbered floor but not on the topmost floor. The one who likes Kaju Kathli does not live on the odd numbered floor. Only two persons live between V and the one who likes Rasgulla. Neither R nor W lives on the first floor. The one who likes Petha does not live on the lowermost floor. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the even numbered floor and lives immediately above the one who likes Peda. Only two persons live between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Gulab Jamun. P lives immediately above V. U does not like Jalebi. Q lives immediately below the one who likes Peda. Only one person lives between W and the one who likes Rasmalai. Only one person lives between V and the one who likes Petha. S lives on the even numbered floor and immediately above W.

• Question No. 68

Which of the following statement is correct?

Options :

1. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the floor number six
2. W likes Gulab Jamun and lives on the floor number seven
3. T likes Rasmalai
4. Only three person lives between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Jalebi
5. None of these

Answer : Only three person lives between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Jalebi

Direction:

Study following information carefully and answer the questions given below.

Eight friends- P, Q, R, S, T, U, V and W are living in an eight floor building. The lowermost floor is numbered one and above it numbered two and so on until the topmost floor is numbered eight. Each of them likes different sweets, viz. Gulab Jamun, Rasgulla, Rasmalai, Petha, Peda, Kaju Kathli, Jalebi and Sonpapdi, but not necessarily in the same order.

Only two persons live between P and R. W likes neither Petha nor Peda. The one who likes Rasgulla lives on the even numbered floor but not on the topmost floor. The one who likes Kaju Kathli does not live on the odd numbered floor. Only two persons live between V and the one who likes Rasgulla. Neither R nor W lives on the first floor. The one who likes Petha does not live on the lowermost floor. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the even numbered floor and lives immediately above the one who likes Peda. Only two persons live between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Gulab Jamun. P lives immediately above V. U does not like Jalebi. Q lives immediately below the one who likes Peda. Only one person lives between W and the one who likes Rasmalai. Only one person lives between V and the one who likes Petha. S lives on the even numbered floor and immediately above W.

• Question No. 69

Who among the following lives on the lowermost floor?

Options :

1. The one who likes Sonpapdi
2. The one who likes Jalebi
3. The one who likes Rasmalai
4. The one who likes Gulab Jamun
5. None of these

Answer : The one who likes Rasmalai

Direction:

Study following information carefully and answer the questions given below.

Eight friends- P, Q, R, S, T, U, V and W are living in an eight floor building. The lowermost floor is numbered one and above it numbered two and so on until the topmost floor is numbered eight. Each of them likes different sweets, viz. Gulab Jamun, Rasgulla, Rasmalai, Petha, Peda, Kaju Kathli, Jalebi and Sonpapdi, but not necessarily in the same order.

Only two persons live between P and R. W likes neither Petha nor Peda. The one who likes Rasgulla lives on the even numbered floor but not on the topmost floor. The one who likes Kaju Kathli does not live on the odd numbered floor. Only two persons live between V and the one who likes Rasgulla. Neither R nor W lives on the first floor. The one who likes Petha does not live on the lowermost floor. The one who likes Sonpapdi lives on the even numbered floor and lives immediately above the one who likes Peda. Only two persons live between the one who likes Kaju Kathli and the one who likes Gulab Jamun. P lives immediately above V. U does not like Jalebi. Q lives immediately below the one who likes Peda. Only one person lives between W and the one who likes Rasmalai. Only one person lives between V and the one who likes Petha. S lives on the even numbered floor and immediately above W.

- Question No. 70

How many persons live between T and the one who likes Peda?

Options :

1. One
2. Two
3. Three
4. Four
5. None of these

Answer : Four

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer the below questions.

Seven persons sitting in a circular table viz. E, F, G, H, Y, Z, A (Some of them are facing inside and some of them are facing outside) but not necessarily in the same order. E faces outside. H sits second to the right of F. G is not an immediate neighbour F and H. Y and G face opposite direction. E sits third to the left of Y and second to the left of F. Y and F faces same direction. Neighbours of Z face opposite direction. A faces opposite direction of the one who sits second to the left of F. More than four persons are facing outside. G sits second to the right of A.

- Question No. 71

How many persons are seating between A and H when counted from left of A?

Options :

1. One
2. None
3. Two
4. Three
5. More than three

Answer : Two

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer the below questions.

Seven persons sitting in a circular table viz. E, F, G, H, Y, Z, A (Some of them are facing inside and some of them are facing outside) but not necessarily in the same order. E faces outside. H sits second to the right of F. G is not an immediate neighbour F and H. Y and G face opposite direction. E sits third to the left of Y and second to the left of F. Y and F faces same direction. Neighbours of Z face opposite direction. A faces opposite direction of the one who sits second to the left of F. More than four persons are facing outside. G sits second to the right of A.

- Question No. 72

Who among the following sits third to the right of F?

Options :

1. A
2. Y
3. E
4. Z
5. G

Answer : Z

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer the below questions.

Seven persons sitting in a circular table viz. E, F, G, H, Y, Z, A (Some of them are facing inside and some of them are facing outside) but not necessarily in the same order. E faces outside. H sits second to the right of F. G is not an immediate neighbour F and H. Y and G face opposite direction. E sits third to the left of Y and second to the left of F. Y and F faces same direction. Neighbours of Z face opposite direction. A faces opposite direction of the one who sits second to the left of F. More than four persons are facing outside. G sits second to the right of A.

- Question No. 73

Four of the following are alike in a certain way so form a group, which of the following does not belong to that group?

Options :

1. F
2. E
3. A
4. Y
5. H

Answer : A

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer the below questions.

Seven persons sitting in a circular table viz. E, F, G, H, Y, Z, A (Some of them are facing inside and some of them are facing outside) but not necessarily in the same order. E faces outside. H sits second to the right of F. G is not an immediate neighbour F and H. Y and G face opposite direction. E sits third to the left of Y and second to the left of F. Y and F faces same direction. Neighbours of Z face opposite direction. A faces opposite direction of the one who sits second to the left of F. More than four persons are facing outside. G sits second to the right of A.

- Question No. 74

If F and G interchanged their Position alone, then how many persons are seating between G and A when counted left of G?

Options :

1. One
2. Two

3. Three
4. None
5. More than four

Answer : None

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer the below questions.

Seven persons sitting in a circular table viz. E, F, G, H, Y, Z, A (Some of them are facing inside and some of them are facing outside) but not necessarily in the same order. E faces outside. H sits second to the right of F. G is not an immediate neighbour F and H. Y and G face opposite direction. E sits third to the left of Y and second to the left of F. Y and F faces same direction. Neighbours of Z face opposite direction. A faces opposite direction of the one who sits second to the left of F. More than four persons are facing outside. G sits second to the right of A.

- Question No. 75

How many persons are facing outside the circle?

Options :

1. 4
2. 3
3. 5
4. 6
5. None of these

Answer : 5

Direction:

The question has a statement followed by two conclusions. You have to take the two given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements disregarding commonly known facts. Give answer.

- Question No. 76

Statements: O

Conclusions:

I. $Q \geq T$

II. M

Options :

1. Only conclusion I follows.
2. Only conclusion II follows.
3. Either Conclusion I or II follows.
4. Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.
5. Both conclusions I and II follows.

Answer : Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.

Direction:

The question has a statement followed by two conclusions. You have to take the two given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements disregarding commonly known facts. Give answer.

- Question No. 77

Statement: $Q \leq L > S \geq O = T$

Conclusions:

I. $L > T$

II. $P > Q$

Options :

1. Only conclusion I follows.
2. Only conclusion II follows.
3. Either Conclusion I or II follows.
4. Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.
5. Both conclusions I and II follows.

Answer : Only conclusion I follows.

Direction:

The question has a statement followed by two conclusions. You have to take the two given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements disregarding commonly known facts. Give answer.

- Question No. 78

Statements: $D = T \geq N > I$, $D = R \geq L$

Conclusions:

I. $D > I$

II. $R \geq N$

Options :

1. Only conclusion I follows.
2. Only conclusion II follows.
3. Either Conclusion I or II follows.
4. Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.
5. Both conclusions I and II follows.

Answer : Both conclusions I and II follows.

Direction:

The question has a statement followed by two conclusions. You have to take the two given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements disregarding commonly known facts. Give answer.

- Question No. 79

Statements: $D = T \geq N > I$, $D = R \geq L$

Conclusions:

I. $L \leq I$

II. $N > L$

Options :

1. Only conclusion I follows.

2. Only conclusion II follows.
3. Either Conclusion I or II follows.
4. Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.
5. Both conclusions I and II follows.

Answer : Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.

Direction:

The question has a statement followed by two conclusions. You have to take the two given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements disregarding commonly known facts. Give answer.

- Question No. 80

Statement: $C \leq A = Y$ N

Conclusions:

I. $A > N$

II. $F > C$

Options :

1. Only conclusion I follows.
2. Only conclusion II follows.
3. Either Conclusion I or II follows.
4. Neither Conclusion I nor II follows.
5. Both conclusions I and II follows.

Answer : Only conclusion II follows.

Direction:

Study the following arrangement carefully and answer the questions.

5 $ 4 Y Z E 6 7 * © @ 8 Q M I V R T C 3 9 D 2 N A U W %

- Question No. 81

Which of the following element is fourth to the left of the tenth element from the right end of the above arrangement?

Options :

1. C
2. 8
3. M
4. I
5. None of these

Answer : I

Direction:

Study the following arrangement carefully and answer the questions.

5 $ 4 Y Z E 6 7 * © @ 8 Q M I V R T C 3 9 D 2 N A U W %

- Question No. 82

How many such numbers are there in the above arrangement, each of which is immediately preceded by a number and not immediately followed by a letter?

Options :

1. None
2. One
3. Two
4. Three
5. More than three

Answer : One

Direction:

Study the following arrangement carefully and answer the questions.

5 $ 4 Y Z E 6 7 * © @ 8 Q M I V R T C 3 9 D 2 N A U W %

- Question No. 83

If all the symbols and letters from the above arrangement are dropped, which of the following will be fifth from the left end of the above arrangement?

Options :

- 1. 5
- 2. 4
- 3. 6
- 4. 8
- 5. 9

Answer : 8

Direction:

Study the following alphabets and answer the questions.

BAT MAT PIN BUT SUN

- Question No. 84

If alphabet 'E' is added to every word at the last place, then how many meaningful words can be formed?

Options :

- 1. One
- 2. Two
- 3. Three
- 4. More than three
- 5. None

Answer : Two

Direction:

Study the following alphabets and answer the questions.

BAT MAT PIN BUT SUN

- Question No. 85

If every vowel is changed to the next letter and every constant is changed to the previous letter, then how many words have at least two vowels?

Options :

1. One
2. Two
3. Three
4. More than three
5. None

Answer : None

Direction:

Study the following alphabets and answer the questions.

BAT MAT PIN BUT SUN

- Question No. 86

If the first and third alphabet of each word is changed to previous letter, then how meaningful words are formed?

Options :

1. One
2. Two
3. Three
4. More than three
5. None

Answer : One

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions given below:

Roshan starts walking towards east direction, after walking 9 km he turns towards north and walks 9 km. Now he turns to the west and walks 5 km. From there he turns to his left and walks 3 km. From there he turns to his right and walks 4 km. Finally turns to his right and walks 3km and reached the final position.

- Question No. 87

What is the direction of Roshan's initial position with respect to his final position?

Options :

1. North-west
2. West
3. North East
4. South
5. South-west

Answer : South

Direction:

Read the following information carefully and answer the questions given below:

Roshan starts walking towards east direction, after walking 9 km he turns towards north and walks 9 km. Now he turns to the west and walks 5 km. From there he turns to his left and walks 3 km. From there he turns to his right and walks 4 km. Finally turns to his right and walks 3km and reached the final position.

- Question No. 88

What is the total distance covered by Roshan?

Options :

1. 36 km
2. 33 km
3. 30 km
4. 29 km
5. None-of-these

Answer : 33 km

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer these questions given below:-

Nine persons were standing in a photograph these persons were related to each other in some way. Either both or none of the parents of the child were there in the photograph.

Purab was the father of Deepak, who has 2 children. Surya was the only daughter of Deepak but Deepak was not the mother of Surya. Nanu was the only sister in law of Gannu. Gannu was the only sibling of Deepak. Gannu's wife had only one child. Madhur was the granddaughter of Sona who was the mother in law of Mita. Akhil was the son of Sona's daughter in law.

- Question No. 89

How is Gannu related to Surya?

Options :

1. Father
2. Uncle
3. Father in law
4. Brother
5. None of these

Answer : Uncle

Direction:

Study the following information carefully and answer these questions given below:-

Nine persons were standing in a photograph these persons were related to each other in some way. Either both or none of the parents of the child were there in the photograph.

Purab was the father of Deepak, who has 2 children. Surya was the only daughter of Deepak but Deepak was not the mother of Surya. Nanu was the only sister in law of Gannu. Gannu was the only sibling of Deepak. Gannu's wife had only one child. Madhur was the granddaughter of Sona who was the mother in law of Mita. Akhil was the son of Sona's daughter in law.

- Question No. 90

Who is the brother of Deepak in the given arrangement?

Options :

1. Purab

2. Gannu
3. Akhil
4. Cannot be determined
5. None of these

Answer : Gannu

Direction:

In each question below are given three statements followed by three conclusions numbered I, II and III. You have to take the given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts. Read all the conclusions and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements, disregarding commonly known facts.

- Question No. 91

Statement:

All bottles are cocktails.

Some cocktails are liquid.

No liquid is a solid.

Conclusion:

I. All bottles being liquid is a possibility.

II. No solid is a cocktail.

III. All solid being bottles is a possibility.

Options :

1. Only I follow
2. Only II and III follow
3. Only I and III follow
4. Only III follow
5. Only III follow

Answer : Only I and III follow

Direction:

In each question below are given three statements followed by three conclusions numbered I, II and III. You have to take the given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts. Read all the conclusions and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements, disregarding commonly known facts.

- Question No. 92

Statement:

All sweaters are shirts.

No shirt is a trouser.

All trousers are caps.

Conclusions:

I. No trouser being shirt is a possibility.

II. All caps being trousers is a possibility.

III. Some shirts are sweaters.

Options :

1. Only I follows
2. Only II follows
3. Only II and III follows
4. Only I and III follows
5. None of these

Answer : Only II and III follows

Direction:

In each question below are given three statements followed by three conclusions numbered I, II and III. You have to take the given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts. Read all the conclusions and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements, disregarding commonly known facts.

- Question No. 93

Statements:

Some plates are saucers

No cup is a glass

All saucers are cups

Conclusions:

I. All plates being cups is a possibility.

II. Some plates are not glasses .

III. All saucers being plates is a possibility.

Options :

1. Only I follows
2. Only II follows
3. Only III follows
4. Only I and II follows
5. None of these

Answer : None of these

Direction:

In each question below are given three statements followed by three conclusions numbered I, II and III. You have to take the given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts. Read all the conclusions and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements, disregarding commonly known facts.

- Question No. 94

Statements:

All tables are chairs.

Some desks are tables.

Some chairs are woods

Conclusions:

I. All desks being woods is a possibility.

II. Some tables are definitely not desks.

III. All table being desks is a possibility

Options :

1. Only I follows
2. Only II follows
3. Only I and III follows
4. Only I and II follows
5. None of these

Answer : Only I and III follows

Direction:

In each question below are given three statements followed by three conclusions numbered I, II and III. You have to take the given statements to be true even if they seem to be at variance with commonly known facts. Read all the conclusions and then decide which of the given conclusions logically follows from the given statements, disregarding commonly known facts.

- Question No. 95

Statements:

Some air conditioners are washing machines

Some cooler are air conditioners.

All washing machines are fridges.

Conclusions:

- I. Some air conditioners are definitely not fridges.
- II. All washing machines being cooler is a possibility.
- III. All washing machines are never coolers.

Options :

1. Only I follows
2. Only II follows
3. Only III follows
4. Only I and II follows

5. None of these

Answer : Only II follows

Direction:

Study the following information and answer the questions followed:

Pulkit, Rachit, Richa, Suresh, Tarun ,Vishal and Jai are sitting in a straight line facing East. Each of them has different surnames i.e. Sharma, Gupta, Goyal, Mehta, Mehra, Oberoi and Kapoor but not necessarily in the same order.

Rachit sits fourth to the left of the person whose surname is Oberoi. Either Rachit or the person whose surname is Oberoi sits at the extreme at ends (top or bottom) of the row. Only one person sits between Rachit and Jai. Jai, whose surname is Goyal. The person whose surname is Sharma sits third to right of Suresh. Suresh is not an immediate neighbour of Jai. Only one person sits between Tarun and the person whose surname is Gupta. Pulkit and Richa are immediate neighbours of each other. Pulkit's surname is not Oberoi. One whose surname is Mehra sits third to right of the one whose surname is Kapoor.

• Question No. 96

Who among the following has surname Gupta?

Options :

1. Tarun
2. Vishal
3. Suresh
4. Richa
5. Rachit

Answer : Vishal

Direction:

Study the following information and answer the questions followed:

Pulkit, Rachit, Richa, Suresh, Tarun ,Vishal and Jai are sitting in a straight line facing East. Each of them has different surnames i.e. Sharma, Gupta, Goyal, Mehta, Mehra, Oberoi and Kapoor but not necessarily in the same order.

Rachit sits fourth to the left of the person whose surname is Oberoi. Either Rachit or the person whose surname is Oberoi sits at the extreme at ends (top or bottom) of the row. Only one person sits between Rachit and Jai. Jai, whose surname is Goyal. The person whose surname is Sharma sits third to right of Suresh. Suresh is not an immediate neighbour of Jai. Only one person sits between Tarun and the person whose surname is Gupta. Pulkit and Richa are immediate neighbours of each other. Pulkit's surname is not Oberoi. One whose surname is Mehra sits third to right of the one whose surname is Kapoor.

• Question No. 97

Four of the following five are alike in a certain way based on the given arrangement, which of the following does not belong to that group?

Options :

1. Rachit
2. Jai
3. Suresh
4. Pulkit
5. Tarun

Answer : Suresh

Direction:

Study the following information and answer the questions followed:

Pulkit, Rachit, Richa, Suresh, Tarun, Vishal and Jai are sitting in a straight line facing East. Each of them has different surnames i.e. Sharma, Gupta, Goyal, Mehta, Mehra, Oberoi and Kapoor but not necessarily in the same order.

Rachit sits fourth to the left of the person whose surname is Oberoi. Either Rachit or the person whose surname is Oberoi sits at the extreme at ends (top or bottom) of the row. Only one person sits between Rachit and Jai. Jai, whose surname is Goyal. The person whose surname is Sharma sits third to right of Suresh. Suresh is not an immediate neighbour of Jai. Only one person sits between Tarun and the person whose surname is Gupta. Pulkit and Richa are immediate neighbours of each other. Pulkit's surname is not Oberoi. One whose surname is Mehra sits third to right of the one whose surname is Kapoor.

• Question No. 98

What is the surname of Tarun?

Options :

1. Sharma
2. Mehta
3. Oberoi
4. Mehra
5. Kapoor

Answer : Sharma

Direction:

Study the following information and answer the questions followed:

Pulkit, Rachit, Richa, Suresh, Tarun, Vishal and Jai are sitting in a straight line facing East. Each of them has different surnames i.e. Sharma, Gupta, Goyal, Mehta, Mehra, Oberoi and Kapoor but not necessarily in the same order.

Rachit sits fourth to the left of the person whose surname is Oberoi. Either Rachit or the person whose surname is Oberoi sits at the extreme at ends (top or bottom) of the row. Only one person sits between Rachit and Jai. Jai, whose surname is Goyal. The person whose surname is Sharma sits third to right of Suresh. Suresh is not an immediate neighbour of Jai. Only one person sits between Tarun and the person whose surname is Gupta. Pulkit and Richa are immediate neighbours of each other. Pulkit's surname is not Oberoi. One whose surname is Mehra sits third to right of the one whose surname is Kapoor.

- Question No. 99

How many persons are there between Vishal and Pulkit?

Options :

1. 5
2. 1
3. 2
4. 3
5. 4

Answer : 3

Direction:

Study the following information and answer the questions followed:

Pulkit, Rachit, Richa, Suresh, Tarun, Vishal and Jai are sitting in a straight line facing East. Each of them has different surnames i.e. Sharma, Gupta, Goyal, Mehta, Mehra, Oberoi and Kapoor but not necessarily in the same order.

Rachit sits fourth to the left of the person whose surname is Oberoi. Either Rachit or the person whose surname is Oberoi sits at the extreme at ends (top or bottom) of the row. Only one person sits between Rachit and Jai. Jai, whose surname is Goyal. The person whose surname is Sharma sits third to right of Suresh. Suresh is not an immediate neighbour of Jai. Only one person sits between Tarun and the person whose surname is Gupta. Pulkit and Richa are immediate neighbours of each other. Pulkit's surname is not Oberoi. One whose surname is Mehra sits third to right of the one whose surname is Kapoor.

- Question No. 100

Who among the following are sitting at extreme end of the rows?

Options :

1. Rachit and Richa
2. Jai and Vishal
3. Suresh and Pulkit d
4. Richa and Suresh
5. Vishal and Rachit

Answer : Richa and Suresh

Attempt Mock Test Now

All ixamBee Mock Test are FREE @ www.ixamBee.com